SHOOTING STARS.

How These Odd and Erratic Baby Planets
Blaze and Darken.

The shooting star is an oddity of the very oldest kind. It is a world of itself, a miniature planet, probably not larger than the paper mache globe on your study table or the rubber ball with which the schoolboys play "three corners cat," but it is a world just the same. These baby planets are not always round, as planets are generally supposed to be, but are known to be in all sorts of queer shapes. Some are square, others octagonal, some irregular and many curved, while one is occasionally met with which is smooth as a brick or a cement paving stone. Probably you have never heard of a man (or woman either, for that matter) "meeting with" a shooting star in any of his wanderings. Let us see how such a thing might be possible.

The shooting star is originally a miniature world, revolving around the sun with as much regularity as the earth, Jupiter, Venus or Mars. It keeps up this unerring flight thousands or even millions of years. Finally it reaches the light of its existence. Suddenly and perhaps without any visible cause, it is shot off at a tangent. It is now a "shooting star." Formerly it was a world, but even now it is not bright as other stars are. Let us see what will cause it to "dash up like a gigantic torch in the heavens." This particular torch that we are talking about shot off from its orbit in the direction of our earth. Its speed is not less than 30 miles a second, probably five times that.

In the great outer sea of space it encounters no resistance to its headlong flight. But wait. It is nearing the envelope of atmosphere which surrounds our globe. What will be the result when it comes in contact with "the air we breathe"? The first stratum it strikes is so attenuated that its resistance is very slight. Yet the friction is great enough to instantly raise the temperature of the falling world. Within the hundredth part of a second the dense stratum of atmosphere has been encountered. The flight of the little world is now perceptibly checked, the result being a sudden firing of the mineral matter in the stone. There is an instantaneous burst of light, and then we see the doomed representative of the miniature planets in all its meteoric splendor.

Possibly the streak of fire it leaves behind the heavens will not appear to be more than a few hundred feet long. Certainly it will be thin and short if the little world was in fact a ball of metal—because it will be almost instantly consumed as soon as it strikes the denser portions of the atmosphere. On the other hand, if this world which has so suddenly come to our notice is as large as a good sized barn when it started, fragments of it weighing from 10 to 1,000 pounds may reach the earth. It is from these fragments that we learn the shape and composition of the aerial phenomenon referred to as "shooting stars."—St. Louis Republic.

DIRECTED HER LETTER TO HEAVEN.

Pathetic Little Story of a Child's Epistle to Her Dead Mother.

At a recent wedding the bride had retired to her dressing room to don her wedding gown. Her mother had been dead a year or more, and she had had a constant care and companionship of her little sister ever since their affliction. The 7-year-old entered the room and went to her sister's chair very deliberately. Drawing a letter from the little pocket, she said:

"Alice, here is a letter to mamma. I have just written, telling her all about the wedding. Will you send it to her?" The older sister, a little shocked, regarded as gently as possible that she couldn't send a letter to mother. Then the little one, looking quite bright, said promptly:

"Oh, yes, you can, because now you are married, you will be getting a little girl, and when you send for her, just give the doctor this letter, and he can take it to mamma when he goes for the baby."

And there on the envelope was the address, printed as best she could: "To Mamma, in Heaven. Kindness of the Doctor."

She took the letter, and hugged the little one to hide the tear which was rubbing off on the curly, brown head.—Washington Star.

Early Candlelight State Dinners.

It appears that in olden times the president used to give his dinner parties at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The grandfathers of Representative Ashcroft of Pennsylvania once dined with George Washington, and his family have preserved the invitation. It is written in a business hand on a fourth page of a sheet of ordinary note paper, with the lines running lengthwise across the sheet, and reads as follows:

Mr. Ashcroft is requested to dine with the president on Thursday, the 28th inst., at 4 o'clock precisely.

Feb. 14, 1797.

Liked Lawyers.

It is recorded of Andrew Johnson that when, senator or president, he was invited to a dinner party, he was wont to ask if any lawyer was to be among the guests. For, said he, lawyers always lubricate things. He took a grayer fancy to William M. Evans, his attorney general, because of his post-prandial fame than because of his eminent legal attainments.—Green Bag.
